Meet Musicians at Children’s Concert-in-the-Round Nov 16

Children ages 4 to 12 will have the opportunity to enjoy the world of Baroque chamber music at the Lenape Chamber Ensemble’s ‘Concert in the Round’ on Saturday, Nov. 16th at 10 A.M. in Doylestown.

Children’s Concerts in the Round are held in the Life Sciences Building Auditorium at Delaware Valley University, 700 East Butler Avenue, in Doylestown and are a regular presentation of the Lenape Chamber Ensemble during its fall and spring concert seasons.

The celebrated chamber musicians who will perform Baroque favorites on Friday night, November 15th in Upper Black Eddy, Pennsylvania, will bring to the children excerpts from the program of Vivaldi, Bach, Rameau, Lotti, Muffat and Reincken for two oboes, two violins, viola, cello, violone and harpsichord. Violinists Cyrus Beroukhim, Emily Daggett Smith and oboists Alexandra Knoll and Kathy Halvorson will entertain the children with their inspirational personalities during the question/answer session. Lionel Party who has been heard many times as harpsichord soloist with the New York Philharmonic will demonstrate his skill. Finally, Vivaldi’s Concerto for oboes, strings and harpsichord will bring all six players together on stage. Then the children may join them on stage to view the instruments and chat with the musicians. Moderators for the 45-minute program will be oboist Alexandra Knoll and Cyrus Beroukhim both from New York City Ballet Orchestra.

The Concert-in-the Round is in the Life Sciences Building Auditorium at Delaware Valley University, 700 East Butler Avenue, in Doylestown. To access the parking lot take the State Street exit off Route 611 bypass and turn left onto New Britain Road.

Admission is $2.00 for each child at the door. Parents and adults accompanying the children will be admitted free. “Concerts In the Round” are supported by a grant from the Pennsylvania Partners in the Arts, a division of the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts and the Erwin J. & Gertrude K. Neusch Fund of the Upper Bucks Community Foundation.

More information can be obtained by calling (610) 294-9361.